

Interaction

Frayer Model

NOTE :

Students should understand the concepts “relationship,” “cause and effect,” and “impact” before proceeding with this activity.

This activity ends with students completing a Fray Model.

Interaction is when an action by something (living or nonliving) has an effect on something else (living or nonliving).

The picture is an example of an interaction.

The owner's action (petting the dog) probably has the effect of making the dog feel loved.

Interaction is when an action by something (living or nonliving) has an effect on something else (living or nonliving).

In this pictures, people are walking by each other without any interaction that we can observe.

Interaction is when an action by something (living or nonliving) has an effect on something else (living or nonliving).

What is one action the person in the middle can do that might begin an interaction with another person?

Interaction is when an action by something (living or nonliving) has an effect on something else (living or nonliving).

What is one action the person in the middle can do that might begin an interaction with another person?

Some actions that may have an effect on others might be

- Smiling at someone walking by.
- Asking for for directions.
- Saying “Hi.”

These actions could begin an interaction.

eyoel-kahssay-FyCjvyPG9Pg-unsplash.

What interaction do you see here?

What might be an the effect of the interaction?

What interaction do you see here?

What might be an effect of the interaction?

What two things might interact here?

What might be the effect?

What does interaction mean?

A definition goes here.

What are the key characteristics of interaction?

Key attributes listed here.

INTERACTION

What are examples of the interaction?

What are non-examples of the interaction?

Thanks

CREDITS: This presentation template was created by Slidesgo, including icons by Flaticon, infographics & images by Freepik and illustrations by Stories